Lawyers from both coasts squared off Wednesday before a 10-judge en banc federal appeals court in Philadelphia in one of the country's most closely watched antitrust cases -- LePage's Inc. v. 3M.

. . . LePage's lawyer, Roy T. Englert Jr. of Robbins, Russell, Englert, Orseck & Untereiner in Washington, D.C., argued that Popofsky's entire argument was premised on a misreading of LePage's case.
