

A Rare Suit in the Battle for Lobby Clients

Carrie Levine
Legal Times
04-11-2008

When Harry Sporidis decided to leave the Washington Group last year, everyone seemed to be on good terms. His boss, CEO Susan Molinari, wished him luck and said she wanted to make his transition smooth. Sporidis says she told him to call her every Tuesday with the hottest gossip, and they planned to have lunch the third Thursday of each month.

When asked about the suit, Sporidis would only say: "It's my sincere hope that we're going to come to a resolution on this soon." He is represented by Alan Strasser of Robbins, Russell, Englert, Orseck, Untereiner & Sauber. Molinari and the firm's attorney, Elizabeth Lalik of Littler Mendelson of McLean, Va., did not return calls seeking comment. A Ketchum spokeswoman said the firm wouldn't comment on pending litigation.

Click here to read the entire article