ABOUT

Donald J. Russell is an antitrust lawyer and litigator. He has represented clients in all types of civil and criminal matters before the U.S. Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission, including agency reviews of mergers and acquisitions (representing clients seeking approval of mergers as well as clients opposing mergers), grand jury investigations, and civil matters. He has counseled clients on a wide range of antitrust issues, including mergers, acquisitions, joint ventures, pricing, and distribution issues. Together with Roy Englert, he has represented plaintiffs, defendants, and amici curiae in numerous antitrust appeals. In addition to antitrust matters, Don's practice also includes non-antitrust civil and criminal trial and appellate litigation.

Before becoming one of the founding partners of the firm in 2001, Don served in the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice for 24 years. He was the Assistant Chief of the Communications and Finance Section from 1986 to 1992; lead attorney in the 1994 monopolization case against Microsoft; and Chief of the Telecommunications Task Force from 1994 to 2001. As chief of the Telecommunications Task Force, he supervised the Division's enforcement actions in the telecommunications industry, including the review of many of the largest mergers in U.S. history.
