ABOUT

Dick Sauber is a litigator who represents companies and individuals in connection with Government investigations and enforcement actions of all types. He has tried dozens of criminal and civil fraud cases and regularly appears for clients in Congressional hearings, Government agency proceedings, and grand jury matters. He has advised companies and their boards on due diligence matters associated with corporate acquisitions. A significant part of his practice is devoted to the conduct of corporate internal investigations, including many which concern issues related to the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act.

Before entering private practice, Dick was a federal prosecutor for seven years. He was appointed by President Reagan to form and lead the first multi-agency task force to concentrate on pursuing fraud in government contracts. He was a partner for 23 years at Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson where he was the Chair of the firm's Washington Litigation Department and a member of the firm's Management Committee. He is an adjunct professor at Georgetown Law School where he has taught a National Security Crimes seminar and an evidence class. He has tried jury cases in New York, Washington, California, Texas, Florida and Oklahoma, and his appellate work includes arguing cases before the Supreme Court and ten of the U.S. Courts of Appeals.
